

EMPLOYEE ACCOUNTABILITY

This course will consider the concept of accountability from a perspective of ensuring that all of us need to be appropriately accountable. That means that we should learn to accept responsibility for what is actually our responsibility but also learn to not take it for what is not. It also emphasizes the idea and techniques for moving to adult-adult relationships in the workplace. After all, it is an adult behavior to own our own successes and failures. The course also passes on techniques for creating a culture of accountability in the workplace.

Helena, Montana

Thursday April 2, 2015
8:30 a.m. — 4:30 p.m.
Mitchell Building

Available for POST, CEU, and OPI Renewal
Investment: $123
(discounts for multiple attendees from one organization)

